PARENT CONFERENCES

We encourage you to meet with your child's teacher about his/her progress. Conferences are held on Monday, February 3.

Each teacher has provided a sign-up sheet for conferences.

Classes are not in session, but the children may come with you and stay in the classroom to be supervised by the teaching assistants. This will allow you to speak with the teacher without distractions.

Each conference is scheduled to be 15 minutes. Please keep this in mind.

Remember...

 Being late is discourteous to not only for the teacher, but the other parents as well.

 Plan to arrive at least 5 minutes early for your conference.

 Have your questions and comments ready prior to your conference. We suggest writing them down. This will allow the teacher to stay on schedule and allot the same amount of time for each parent.

- Please alert your child's other caregivers to this policy, especially if they have your children in the morning.

VIRTUE OF THE MONTH - PATIENCE

The virtue of the month is Patience. Young children develop patience gradually. Perhaps waiting in line at the grocery store triggers crying and complaining. Use this time to tell your child a story, count the groceries in the cart, or sing a song. Tell your child that sometimes we have to wait for things and that we can do other things while we are waiting. When a parent exhibits patience with their children, the children then adopt those traits.

ON THE ROAD AGAIN

Have you ever thought about how much time you and your child spend in the car each day? With a little planning, your journeys can become shared moments of fun and learning.

Before you go to the store, for example, involve your child in making a shopping list. You can ask your child to check the cereal boxes to see if any are almost empty. A 4- or 5-year-old also can check on the supply of milk, extra rolls of toilet tissue, and other items. Later, you can consult this list together as you shop.

As you proceed on your errands, read signs around you. Take along paper and pencil for mapping out your stops. Help orient your child by pointing out stores and streets you pass along the way.

After a busy day at school, your child may need a break from the hustle of the schedule. Bring along a light snack or something cool to drink for the trip home. (Some items such as lollipops are not safe in the car or on the bus; choose snacks with care.) Usually it's a good idea to take a little quiet break before you begin discussing the day's events or focusing on the next stop.

On days when neither of you feels like talking, a couple of sing-along or storybook tapes, kept in an activity bag or backpack, will come in handy. Drawing materials, large dice, card games, small toys, puzzles, and books make great additions to a backpack.

Before a long trip, gather information and read about the destination to help your child look forward to the excursion. Together, map out points of interest along the way.

Games like I Spy, searching for animals, counting colored cars, matching sign shapes, finding silly-named streets, looking for out-of-state license plates, or inventing rhymes amuse away the miles.

When your child's attention begins to wander, switch to another game or take a break. Plan frequent stretch-and-bend stops to satisfy the wiggles. And don't forget that favorite pillow or stuffed animal!
